

GEORGE P. VOURVOULIAS, III

MARITIME ATTORNEY | OFFSHORE WORKER ADVOCATE | LEGAL COMMENTATOR

The People Who Do the Hardest Jobs Deserve the Strongest Advocate.

George Vourvoulias has spent more than two decades standing up for maritime workers. From towboat crews, Jones Act seamen, offshore service vessel crews, barge workers, and commercial fishermen, he represents people whose jobs are physically demanding, hazardous, inherently dangerous, but also essential to keeping America moving, supplied, and strong.

With an LL.M. in Admiralty and Maritime Law from Tulane University, George has dedicated his practice to maritime and Jones Act law. He understands that behind every case is a worker whose livelihood, family, and future have been forever changed.

Known for his relentless preparation and unwavering commitment to his clients, George believes every case deserves to be told with honesty, compassion, and conviction. His mission is simple: hold negligent companies and their insurance carriers accountable while fighting for the people who do the real work to make America's maritime industry possible.

WHY REPORTERS CALL GEORGE

When disaster strikes on the water, reporters need more than legal jargon. They need someone who can explain what happened, why it matters, and what comes next.

George breaks down complex maritime law into clear language with practical insight. Whether discussing offshore explosions, vessel collisions, maritime deaths, Jones Act claims, workplace safety failures, or major maritime litigation, he helps audiences understand both the legal issues and the human impact behind the headlines.

His commentary is informed, practical, balanced, and grounded in decades of experience representing injured maritime workers.

AUTHORITATIVE COMMENTARY

Maritime Accidents and Breaking News

Offshore explosions, vessel collisions, commercial fishing accidents, cruise ship incidents, barge accidents, and Coast Guard investigations.

Offshore Worker Rights

The legal protections available to seamen, offshore workers, and maritime professionals following serious workplace injuries.

Workplace Safety and Employer Accountability

Preventable accidents, industry safety standards, employer responsibility, and the legal consequences of unsafe working conditions.

Maritime Law and the Jones Act

Breaking down complex maritime law into practical, easy-to-understand insights for workers, employers, and the public.

The Business of Maritime

Legal developments affecting commercial shipping, offshore energy, ports, logistics, and the future of America's maritime workforce.

High Profile Maritime Litigation

Emerging legal trends, precedent-setting cases, catastrophic injury claims, wrongful death litigation, and the evolving landscape of maritime law.

SIGNATURE SPEAKING TOPICS

The People Who Keep America Moving

A powerful look at the legal rights, workplace risks, and challenges facing the men and women who work on America's waterways.

When Disaster Strikes Offshore

What every worker, employer, and industry leader should know before a maritime accident changes everything.

Beyond the Jones Act

Breaking down one of America's most important workplace protections and what it means for today's maritime workforce.

The Human Side of Maritime Law

Behind every maritime injury is a human being and worker, a family, and a story that deserves to be told.

Safety Is More Than a Policy

Lessons from decades of representing injured maritime workers and what companies can do to prevent life-changing accidents.

Holding the Line

Accountability, resilience, and the pursuit of justice after catastrophic maritime injuries.

WHY REPORTERS CALL GEORGE

Maritime law is complex. George makes it understandable. Whether representing injured workers, speaking to industry leaders, or providing legal commentary, he brings clarity, experience, and a relentless commitment to protecting those who work on the water.

MEDIA CONTACT

George P. Vourvoulis, III

The Maritime Injury Law Firm
(504) 584-6300

www.TheMaritimeInjuryLawFirm.com

